DEFINITIONS

Deaf – The condition of a person whose hearing in both ears is impaired to the degree that the person is unable to understand speech.

Hard of Hearing – The condition of a person whose hearing loss requires use of specialized telecommunications equipment to communicate effectively on the telephone.

Speech Disability – The condition of a person whose speech impediment renders speech on an ordinary telephone unclear and susceptible to misunderstanding.

TTY (Text Telephone) – An electrical device with a keyboard which, when used with a telephone, allows a deaf or hard of hearing individual to effectively communicate.

VCO (Voice Carry Over) – A device that allows deaf or hard of hearing users without speech disabilities to speak directly to the called person. Everything the called person says is typed either directly or by a communications assistant and appears as text on the display of the VCO device. CapTel™ is an enhanced VCO device.

HCO (Hearing Carry Over) – A device that allows a person with a speech disability to listen directly to the telephone conversation through speakers or headphones connected to a TTY and to type their response using the TTY keyboard, which is then read by a communications assistant to the person they are calling.

Things to Consider about Captioning Telephones

1. Captioned telephones allow the user to listen with amplification to the caller and also to read everything the caller is saying.
2. Captioned telephone calls have a third party operator who listens to the caller's side of the conversation, and then revoices everything the caller says into voice recognition technology. The voice recognition technology converts verbal input into text output, which is then sent back down the telephone/internet lines to the user's captioned telephone. This process may result in some delays in the natural flow of the conversation.
3. To prevent fraudulent use of the service, registration with the captioned telephone service provider will be required, including name, address, birth date, and the last four digits of the user's SSN.
4. Captioning may not be perfect! Captioning accuracy varies from one service provider to another.

Captioned telephones work just like a regular telephone, except they allow you to read the portion of the conversation that you cannot effectively hear through the handset. The captioning service is provided by a live communications assistant using voice recognition technology. The captioning service is provided free of charge to the end user, and is paid for either by the State of Wyoming or via the FCC's Telecommunications Relay Service fund. The FCC requires that distributors of captioned telephones assess users to ensure the captioning service and its funding mechanisms are utilized appropriately. Unless a client is a previous captioned telephone user, WYRED requires clients to be assessed to determine if they can benefit from captioning. A captioned telephone will not be provided if the client can benefit from amplification and/or tone control only.
